Poetical.

THE WAYSIDE WELL.

He stopped at the wayside well,
Where the water was cool and deep;
There were feathery ferns 'twixt the mossy stones,
And gray was the old well-sweep.

He left his carriage alone;
Nor could coachman or footman tell
Why the master stopped in the dusty road
To drink at the wayside well.

He swayed with his gloved hands
The well-sweep creaking and slow,
While from seam and scar in the bucket's side
The water plashed back below.

He lifted it to the curb,
And bent down to the bucket's brim;
No furrows of time or care had marked
The face that looked back at him.

He saw but a farmer's boy
As he stooped o'er the brim to drink,
And ruddy and tonned was the laughing face,
That met his over the brink.

The eyes were sunny and clear,
And the brow undimmed by care,
While from under the brim of the old straw hat
Strayed curls of chestnut hair.

He turned away with a sigh;
Nor could coachman or footman tell
Why the master stopped in his ride that day
To drink at the wayside well.

— Walter Learned.

THE UNCHANGEABLE DEAD.

They change not, though the world is ever changing;
In memory still they live, the dear ones gone,
While others flee, they seem to fondly linger,
To cheer our pathway as we wander lone.
They live to bless us ever,
Dissevered from us never.

The world's great throng is swiftly by us hasting,
Their eyes intent on luring prizes sought
While our loved dead look kindly on us ever,
With smiles more sweet than gold has ever brought.
Their eyes look coldly never,
Their love endures forever.

Upon our minds, our looks, our senses falling,
Time chisels changes as the years flit by,
Still chisels none upon the features loving,
Smiling upon us with an undimmed eye
They look and love forever,
Unkindly gazing never.

When all our years have fled, the last departing,
When friends have changed, have been and passed away,
Unchanged our dead are near the only living
Adown eternal years prolonging stay.
Our dead desert us never,
Are with us now and ever.

THE LAST CABINET DAY.

THE FRIDAY BEFORE THE SHOOTING.

A special correspondent of the Philadelphia Times in Washington writes as follows, under date of August 22nd:

A long residence in Washington proves the sad fact that "court life" at the capital of a republic is precisely the same as in a monarchy, except in the change of its duration. As the time to accomplish results is so very brief the odious process becomes more patent and less care is taken to hide all the art and skill practiced by the parasites who surround the Executive and who change his nature in a very brief time unless, like "Old Hickory" or Abraham Lincoln, he cannot be veneered by his surroundings because the identity is too strong. When a citizen enters the White House as the political head of the nation he never hears another familiar word. From the august Secretary of State to the scullion in the kitchen it is "Mr. President." Not only the inclination downward of the head with the bending muscles of the knee, but even the voices of the old friends become humble in tone and deferential in spirit. Cringing servants in the shape of Congressmen—in fact, all other mortals who have favors to crave—creep and crawl before the face of majesty. By and by the strong and designing of either sex elbow all the rest away, and form a cordon around the Executive, coloring all in the shape of everything which reaches his ears and eyes until he is no longer himself and is as blind as a bat hung to the walls of the Mammoth Cave.

THE LAST CABINET DAY.

In proof of the above assertion the writer will give the readers of The Times a description of the last day at the White House before the attempt was made upon President Garfield's life. It was Friday, the last "Cabinet day" in the annals of this administration. It was the first day of July, hot and sultry beyond description. The breeze which swept through the open doors of the Mansion came like the breath from an open oven. The spray from the fountains turned into vapor in its ascending flight and reminded the beholder of boiling geysers in a volcanic plain. Inside the White House a crowd had congregated to improve the opportunity of the last chance before the President should depart on his summer tour. Both branches of Congress, army and navy, Governors of States and Territories, with the odds and ends of humanity all unknown to fame, were collected in an indescribable whirling kaleidoscope. At times the stairs leading to the "throne room" would be turned into a cataract, but instead of animalcule in the water it was humanity in the air. The stairs free from the descending mass would be instantly filled with the same kind of material in an upward flight, to remain until hope was dead, and the first result would be enacted again. It was understood that the President would see the people between the hours of ten and twelve, although it was "Cabinet day." But, alas, the "people" meant the Cabinet officers, for not content with seeing their chief at the twelve o'clock council, it appeared that each had a little private business of his own. At ten o'clock, or rather five minutes after, the coue of the Treasury Department deposited Secretary Windom, apparently fresh from the hands of his laundress, faultlessly attired in thin nest of summer covering, on the Executive porch. The fragrance of a perfumed bath still clung to his handsome person and nothing could be compared to it but heaven's own dew clinging to a morning glory. With mischief dancing in his hazel eyes and a wave of his fragrant hand to the little woman whose duty it is to press his official name between leaves of lavender, he disappeared. Then came Lincoln—"Bob" the people call him, not tall like his late father, but stalwart of limb and broad of shoulder, a strong, handsome face, which lights up with the same expression which we all remember who had the honor of standing in the presence of Abraham Lincoln. A moment and he is gone. And now cames Postmaster General James, looking neither to the right nor the left, with his eyes bent as usual in one direction. Built on the narrow-gauge plan, long, slim, shallow and slender, ophidian and dazzling, one listens for the death dealing rattle. Cold chills begin to creep along the great nerve centres. He glides up the stairs. Thank heaven, he has gone. A moment later and a prominent Governor says: "Garfield never knows what that man is bringing about." Stand aside! He's little, but how he can sting! It is MacVeagh—a Scottish chief. The tartan plaid, bare legs and pibroch are invisible. Round, dense and compact as a bullet, with the characteristics of Scotland which mark him as surely as the furze that each season adorns the heather. American-born generations may stand between him and his ancestors, but he is no more changed than an English walnut would be, transplanted to the Western continent.

STILL THEY COME.

Square, heavy-rigged, sitting low in the water, bearing down under full sail, determined to reach the port in time—this is Secretary Kirkwood. His clothes are thin and fleecy, but more sheepy looking than cloud-like. He perspires! One is reminded of great drops of rain pattering on a shingled roof, only the noise must exist in the imagination. Homely and plain as a crooked apple tree, and yet the very shade where it would be delightful to linger. Only a rough shell, containing the sweetest of kernels. After eleven! The clock hands point to the hour of twelve A moving tableau enters the broad corridor from a side door. Secretary Blaine is the central figure, On his right walks Sir Edward Thornton, in full court dress, dazzling in decorations and gold lace. He has come to take formal leave of the President, as he has been called home by his Queen. On the left of the Secretary walks his eldest daughter, proudly —Miss Alice Blaine. She is clad in pure white, unrelieved by color. A broad-brimmed chip hat on the back of her head frames her oval brunette face, and with her youth and grace she is a striking addition to the picture. Secretary Blaine looks troubled and worried. The shadows have grown darker under his eyes, while the other portions of his face are far more pallid than of yore. His step is less elastic, but the heat must be considered. The doors close and the curtain falls. It should have been mentioned before that the officials who guard the front doors of the White House have the power to assign people to different rooms in the order which may seem to them best. Those whom they consider of most consequence are permitted to go up the stairs, whilst the "rabble," so called from want of honorary prefixes to their names, must remain below. This is applicable to Cabinet day. When the fortunate arrives up stairs the winnowing process goes on again. The highest privilege is to be permitted to enter the room or headquarters of Mr. J. Stanley Brown, a youth of twenty-two summers, whose velvet cheeks, destitute of hirsute ornament or manly decoration, is sufficient evidence of his guileless innocence and his willingness to obey the will of others. Mr. Rose, who had been the President's private secretary for years when he was a Congressman, was found to have opinions of his own, and it did not suit those who have matters in hand to have that kind of material to manage.

AN INCIDENT.

Whilst Dr. Bliss has shown the country that he does not believe in having too many doctors around, Swaim and Rockwell are the men who keep guard at the chamber door of the President and will not permit a friendly face to pass. As proof the following fact is given to the readers of The Times: When Mrs. Garfield visited New York, before her late illness, she invited her warm personal friend, Miss Ransom, to accompany her. The two intended to visit the art galleries together. Mrs. Garfield wished to have Miss Ransom's opinion on a picture of Alexander Hamilton that had lately been resurrected and came to light after lying for many years among the rubbish. Mrs. Rockwell also went along. When the names of the august female Presidential party were made up to be given to the press Colonel Rockwell instructed the correspondents to leave out Miss Ransom's name, saying that "no names must be mentioned but Mrs. Garfield and Mrs. Rockwell." All the old trusted friends of the Garfields are thrust aside, whilst Swaim and Rockwell guard the doors. The isolation and cruelty towards the President is not the work of the doctors, for they are only intent on killing off each other and if the country could be relieved of this surplus material the nation would have cause to rejoice.

WAITING AN AUDIENCE.

But coming back to the White House, among those permitted to wait up stairs was the gallant Colonel Buell, who had come to Washington after an eighteen months' campaign in the field after the murdering Victoria and his savage band. He waited until the Cabinet meeting was over, and it was well on to 4 o'clock. "Better on an Indian trail in the wilderness than the trail of a President, if this is the experience," he said. Did President Garfield know that this brave, gallant soldier awaited audience at his door? The writer believes not. Did the soldier depart with his face crisped with disappointment? He did. Who saw the President? One woman of all the women who hung around like the lost souls around the gates of Paradise. This was Mrs. General Morgan L. Smith, the woman who began a suit in the New York courts for $25,000 damages for refusing to pay her for giving a decision of the Supreme Court in advance of its being known through the regular news channel. Mrs. Morgan Smith informed the writer that her interview with the President was perfectly satisfactory. The joy stamped on her beautiful face was sufficient proof. The soldier walked sad and dejected away, but from the window of the Executive Mansion a woman's eyes filled with tears followed his retreating footsteps; and from the holiest depths of her heart ascended the prayer that God would shield and protect him, and give his brave soul and strong arm the strength to protect the lone settlers from the murderous savages that infest our remote frontier.

OLIVIA.

William Brooks attempted to shoot his wife, at Shelby, N. C. The indignation of his neighbors was outspoken, and they proposed to have him prosecuted; but he said that they need not go to that trouble, for he fully realized his despicable character, and would punish himself with death on the following day. Next morning he shouldered his gun and a rope and started for the woods, telling his family that when they heard a shot they might know that he was hanging himself, and could get his body. They did not believe him: yet they went in search of him on hearing the promised signal, and found him dead.

Ancient Sports and Feats.

BY DR. R. SHELTON MACKENZIE.

Among other things that have floated down on the tide of hoar antiquity, athletic exercises of strength and skill are to be counted in. Pugilism, foot races, quoit-throwing, wrestling, leaping, the acts of acrobats, rope dancing, and walking on the tight rope, are almost "as old as the hills."

Many of our readers have either seen or heard of the surprising feats of Monsieur Blondin, a wonderful French performer, who won a great reputation and "lots of money" throughout the United States, some twenty years ago, as a rope-walker.

Since then Blondin has chiefly lived in Europe, occasionally performing and always surpassing rivalry, whether on the part of male or female rivals. It was Blondin who having fixed a tight rope across Niagara and its foaming waters beneath, used that slender pathway to walk, run, and dance upon.

He walked—he ran—along the cord, which seemed to the spectators as a mere thread. He sat down to dine upon it or play the violin. He crossed it with a stout man upon his back. He drove a wheelbarrow before him upon it. He even crossed the abyss on a bicycle.

Rope-dancing was first heard of about B. C. 1345, when the feast of Bacchus was instituted in Greece—that is, some 3225 years ago. Ancient medals, carefully preserved in the cabinets of curious collectors, and of public museums, show how and what the dancers on rope performed in the olden time.

Some of them ran up and down on a rope stretched obliquely. Others walked upon a horizontal line, either tight or slack, with or without a balancing pole, often throwing somersaults just as if they stood on solid ground.

In the time of the empire, the Romans were so much addicted to these hazardous and adroit feats that animals—such as horses and elephants—were trained to walk on the tight rope; and Pliny, who mentions this, affirm that they descended from the rope backward.

In those days the dancers were wondrously skillful. Some, after having walked along the rope, would take off their clothes and put them on again, while on this slender footing, apparently with as much ease as if they were in their bedrooms.

Rope-dancing passed, as an amusement, from Rome to her conquered provinces. Later, in the reign of Charles V, a man at Paris stretched slender cords from the towers of Notre Dame, and slid down them so rapidly that he was called "Le Voleur," or the Flyer.

When Isabel, of Bavaria, Queen of France by marriage, entered Paris, "Le Voleur," attired as an angel, glided down a rope from the tower of Notre Dame to the bridge over the Seine, and, at the moment the lady passed, stood before her, while he removed a splendid crown from his head to hers.

Similar, and even far more difficult feats in this line were performed in London, Milan and Genoa. An ancient painting shows how, on the feast day of St. Mark, the patron saint of Venice, an acrobat, walked down, occasionally pausing to dance, upon a rope suspended from the Campanile to the Quay of the Grand Canal.

In early Greece athletic exercises were held in the highest: those who endeavored to excel in them were called athletes, which signifies combatants. They had to pass through a long and severe course of exercises and practice before they could enter the lists, as competitors in the public games.

What was the reward—the prize? Simply a wreath of laurel, pine, wild olive, or oak leaves, according to the locality. The honor of the victory was enough in these early days.

The athletes had to strive for the mastery in foot and in chariot races, in wrestling, in throwing the quoit, in pugilism, in combats with swords, javelins or discs. The winners obtained high privileges, as well as honors, and their statues were placed in the sacred grove of Olympia, in Elis—hence the name of the Olympian games.

Feats of strength were thought highly of. Joined with skill, as in wrestling, it counted for a great deal. Hercules is reputed to have carried off the prize, as a wrestler, at the Olympian Games. By the way, as the athletes were not burdened with any garments, women were not permitted to witness competitive performances.

Pugilism, sometimes familiarly called "fisticuffs," was among the ancient games. When, in a wrestle, the rivals came to blows from fists to faces, it was called the pancrere.

Boxing was one of the earliest of man's performances, whether in sport or anger. The Greeks had their children instructed in pugilism, as well as in philosophy and the fine arts. Great care was devoted to training and preparing them.

The Greek pugilist was well rubbed with oil, to make his limbs supple and slippery, and each fist was fortified by the cestus, consisting of leather thongs wound around it and the fore part of the arm. In combat, the blows given with the aid of this armor were often fatal.

Boxing matches were often alluded to or described by Homer, Virgil and other classical writers. The crowning glory was to "go in and win"—coming out of the contest safe and sound, without scratch or bruise. Even children glorified in the marks of the strife.

"The Labor of Hercules," formerly much in vogue in Venice, was Greek in its origin. It consisted of a human pyramid, formed by some thirty able bodied men, of whom twenty, arms linked together, formed the base, tier after tier rising, until the summit was formed by a single man, standing on the joined hands of the row next beneath him, consisting of four men

This human apex would go through a series of skillful and interesting performances, to the delight of the doge, the nobles, the fair ladies, the Grand Council, the Senate, and the Commons of Venice, and finally jump down from the top of the pyramid upon a matress spread for him on the ground. This is the way with modern gymnasts.

There were other feats, still in use. Among these are jumping—in which, by the way, the flea excels, seeing that with a single leap he clears a distance of one hundred times the length of his own body, and has been trained to drag a weight twenty-four times heavier than himself.

In connection with the subject upon which I have been gossipping to-day, in this column, are the acrobats of past and present time, about whom much that would be interesting to the general reader might be written. They are familiar beings, too, from their performances in the circus, the ampitheatre, and occasionally the play house.

Dear, very dear to all ages and to both sexes, are these gay and glittering beings, who hang or swing from the trapeze, ascend geometrical staircases, walking on a great ball, ride on half a dozen steeds at a time, and, swiftly borne around the saw-dusted pit, deviate now and then, to take flying leaps through hoops covered with tissue paper, and carefully held up by the clown in the ring, and, at odd times, by the ring-master, grand creature as he is.

How a Chinese Woman was Disposed of.

On the evening of the 30th of June, while the C. N. Company's steamer Peking was lying alongside the hulk at Hankow, the officers witnessed an attempt to drown a woman from a sampan close to the landing steps, on the part of two men, one of whom was seen to push her into the water. Mr. Morgan, of the customs service, who saw the occurrence from the shore, ran down the steps and rescued the woman, the water there being only about six feet deep. When he pulled her out of the water it was found that her hands were tied behind her and that a large stone was fastened around her neck. She said to her rescuer: "Maskee! more better I die." When she had recovered from the effects of her bath she went home. At 4:30 A. M., the next day she was "successfully drowned" by her two brothers-in-law, the men whose attempt had been frustrated on the previous day. They took her out this time into the middle of the river and having attached a line to her waist, as well as pinioned her arms and fixed a stone round her neck, they pushed her into the water as before. After life was extinct they pulled the body up by the line round the waist, took it ashore and buried it with the usual funeral rites. The crime of the deceased was stated to be that "she refused to marry an old man; she being a fine, blooming widow, wanted something better." The details of the actual murder were given to Mr. Morgan by some Chinese who witnessed both events, and the murderers themselves told him that it would have been better if he had not interfered with their first attempt.—China News, July 5.

A Countryman Astonished

"Professor" E. C. Bassett, of this city, can tell many interesting incidents connected with his experience as a psychologist and a balloonist, but he never was taken for "old clovenhoof" but once. This was on Talcott Mountain, where he was making a cup of "French" coffee by the road. This was done by pouring a little brandy into a cup of cold coffee, and then setting fire to it. While he was so employed, a farmer came jogging by in his wagon, and hauled up to see what Bassett was up to. The latter invited the old man to take some coffee. The brandy was still blazing, but the more brilliant blaze of the noonday sun completely obscured the flame. The countryman alighted, and asked for a match with which to light his pipe.

"I don't use matches," was Bassett's answer. "See!"

And Bassett held a piece of paper over the cup of coffee, and it ignited instantly. He turned to hand the light to the stranger, and saw him clambering into his wagon.

"Get up!" shouted the man to his horse. "I never have dined with the devil, and I don't propose to begin now." And he drove furiously away.—Hartford Times.

On Hearty Eating.

There are habits in eating as well as drinking or smoking. There are different classes of eaters, such as the bolters, who swallow their dinners in five minutes and then run off to workshop or the counting house; the gorgers, who think that the great end of life is to "eat drink, and be merry;" the gourmands who stuff their stomach as they would a sack with corn; the dyspeptic eaters, the nibblers, who are chiefly ladies who like to keep themselves petite and delicate, and those who eat reasonably. The bolters and gorgers are certain to become dyspeptics and the nibblers to be affected with nervous disorders. The stomach is not so strong as some people imagine, and when people become ill from those careless habits they run to the doctor to cure them of what they could easily have cured themselves and saved their money and their health. After a person has eaten a meal he should wait a little while before going to business. We are all well enough off with three meals a day with well cooked food. Young women of the nibbling class ought not to be ashamed to eat a good hearty meal instead of eating little and often.—Dr. E. G. Janeway, New York.

How Lincoln Ended a Dispute.

During Mr. Lincoln's time there was a great row over the postoffice at Dayton, O. Two Hotspurs were in the field. Petition after petition in favor of one or the other poured in upon the President, and delegation after delegation hastened to Washington to argue the case. Mr. Lincoln was a long-suffering man, but his patience gave out at last. He could not determine that one applicant was in the slightest degree more competent, or more patriotic, or better supported than the other. Finally, after being bored by a fresh delegation, he said to his secretary: "This matter has got to end somehow. Bring me a pair a pair of scales." The scales were brought. "Now put in all the petitions and letters in favor of one man, and see how much they weigh, and then weigh the other fellow's pile." It was found that one bundle was three quarters of a pound heavier than the other. "Make out an appointment at once for the man who has the heaviest papers," said Mr. Lincoln, and it was done.

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM SOLVED.

Ambition, competition and over-exertion use up the vital powers of men and women, so that a desire for stimulants seems to be a natural human passion, and drunkenness prevails on account of this necessity for bodily and mental invigoration. Simmons Liver Regulator, purely vegetable, is not unpleasant to the taste. It is the medicine generally used in the South to arouse the torpid liver to healthy action. It is most effective in starting the secretions of the liver, causing the bile to act as a cathartic. ### THE PRESIDENT.

On Friday last the wounded President had another relapse, and sank so rapidly that, on Saturday, even the physicians despaired of saving his life. He rallied, however, and has, if not improved, at least held his own. He is now able to partake of solid food and his pulse is lower than at any time since August 8th. The swollen parotid gland has discharged large quantities of pus and is reduced in size. It was feared that the lungs had become affected, but careful tests have proved this not to be the case. The wound is slowly healing, but it is thought will do better now that the bullet has changed its position. The President is still a very sick man, but there is a ray of hope that he may recover. It is in contemplation to remove him from the White House and, when he can bear the fatigue, to his home in Mentor.

Mr. Jay Gould is of the opinion that, in event of the President's death, an Eastern man should be appointed Secretary of the Treasury. A better reason for the retention of Mr. Windom could not be given.

The Philadelphia Press suggests that Jerry Black be the next Democratic candidate for President. Bob Ingersoll should certainly run against him as an independent candidate—Cleveland Herald.

Why independent? Let him run as the candidate of his own party of morality, of which he is so distinguished an ornament. He is now and always has been a Republican. Let the party support him.

Ex-Surgeon General Hammond is a remarkable man and is, in his own estimation, the greatest surgeon now living. He has never seen the President since he was shot, but knows more about his condition than those who see him daily. Nobody pays any particular attention to his criticisms of abler men than himself, and it is surprising that the big newspapers consent to print his utterances.

Our impecunious ex-President, Gen. Grant has scraped together a little money and bought himself a house in New York. It is a modest little brown stone edifice four stories high and cost the insignificant sum of $93,000. What are those New York bankers thinking of, that they allow the poor man to live in such a hovel? Another subscription is in order—and p. d. q. too.

The Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin advocates the election of a Republican for County Commissioner on the ground that he lives in the city and, therefore, would have no bill for mileage. That argument is as novel as it is weak. If the man in question were elected, ten to one his mileage account would be the biggest of all. The Gazette is too utterly too saving of the people's money—from party motives.

The accident record of the Railroad Gazette shows that there were 102 rail road accidents in the United States in July. Thirty-eight persons were killed and 122 injured. Of the 102 accidents 20 caused the death of one or more persons and 24 caused injury but not death, leaving 58, or 56.9 per cent. of the whole number, in which no injury to persons is recorded. Compared with July, 1880, there was an increase of 24 in the number of accidents, of 17 in the number of killed and of 22 in that of injured.

The country is certainly without a president except one in name, who in the language of the constitution is unable to "discharge the powers and duties of the said office," when by the same article they "shall devolve upon the vice president." Mr. Garfield is not only not in a condition to be disturbed with cares of state or even the manual exercise of signing his name, but his mind is only occasionally lucid and he is not in a condition in which any court would approve a will made by him. If the constitution means anything his powers and duties now devolve upon another.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

"Americans and friends of Ireland are hereby warned against embarking on any vessel flying the British flag after Thursday, September 1. Many may reach their destination, but none are safe. Per order of the Central Committee."

It was at first thought that this was a hoax, but O'Donovan Rossa says that it is probably the work of a Chicago dynamite club and is perfectly proper. Is it not about time that the police took the matter in hand and after ascertaining who are the members of the "Central Committee", arrest them and lodge them in jail? There is something frightful in the idea that innocent men, women and children are even threatened with such a terrible death.

The unfortunate town of Milton was visited by another fire on Sunday last. The saw mill of Murray Dougal & Co's car shops, and a large amount of lumber were consumed. The flames burnt fiercely and but for the vigorous efforts of the firemen and the steam fire engine, a large conflagration would have ensued. The asphaltum roof covering the boiler works of the car shops was on fire, but was extinguished. The planing mill of D. Clinger was in great danger, but was saved. The loss is estimated at $7,000; and the insurance, two-thirds of that sum. This fire started about eighty rods west of where the big fire of 1880 started. Its origin is unknown. A large crowd of citizens were present, and great excitement prevailed.

A correspondent of the Williamsport Sun and Banner writing from Wilkes-Barre at the time of the encampment, says: "The general opinion of "the boys" is that Wilkesbarre is no such a place for a good time as either Bloom or Philadelphia. Thus far the interest of the people in the military display has amounted to nothing. While at Philadelphia nearly every dress parade was witnessed by thousands, but here only a few hundred citizens have, as yet, come out. It is generally believed that the people of the coal regions have no love for the military arm of the government."

The prices charged by the post-offices for small postal orders savers more of exorbitant money-making than of accommodation to the public. The business has no risks in it to the Post-office Department, and the fees charged are positively burdensome to poor people. If the object is money making on the part of the government it is all right, but if it is for the accommodation of the public who have small bank accounts then reform is needed.—Chicago Inter Ocean (Rep.)

One of the results which is almost sure to follow the Republican control of the House of Representatives at Washington is an increase in the expenditures for various incidental purposes. Before the Democrats obtained control of the House $15,000 was the annual expenditure for furniture and repairs. It was reduced to one-half. The reckless extravagance of Republican Congresses received no check until a Democratic majority took the matter in hand. There are many other similar matters which received the attention of the Democratic Congress and a saving aggregating millions of dollars was effected, but the same old methods of plundering the people will be resorted to by the horde of public thieves whose operations were suspended during Democratic rule but who will again assume their old places under Republican control of the House.—Chester County Democrat.

MOVING OF THE BULLET.

It is reported that the indications are such as to lead to the belief, that the bullet in the President's body has moved a distance of about three inches from its original position. The movement was in a downward direction and the bullet is now believed to be in a place where it can be readily removed, if indeed it does not leave the body in a natural way. Another important fact disclosed by this new discovery is that the ball was not encysted, as from the outset has been claimed; for if it had been encysted, it could not have fallen three inches and have found its way to the position where Dr. Hamilton is now understood to claim that it is; and if it was not encysted, it has been and is a constant source of irritation. The theory, if correct, would explain the continued high pulse and temperature of the wounded man during the past sixty days. The bullet is thought to have moved since the relapse of Friday, and would seem to account for the sudden change for the better that followed the almost hopeless condition of the President on Saturday.

THE STATE FAIR.

On Monday next the state fair will begin in the exposition building at Pittsburg, and from present indications will be one of the best exhibitions ever given by the society. It will continue until the 17th inst, thus giving ample time for visitors to attend from the most distant points in the State. The exhibits will be more numerous than on any previous year. Very liberal premiums will be offered and among others, may be mentioned those for butter, which are as follows:

The first premium for best creamery butter, not less than 100 pounds in quantity, made outside of Pennsylvania, $22; second prize, $20; third prize, $15. Best creamery butter, three packages, not less than 100 pound, made in Pennsylvania, $25; second prize, same quantity, $20; third prize, $15. Best dairy butter, three packages of not less than 100 pounds, $25; second prize, $15; third prize, $10. Best dairy butter print, 10 pounds, $20; second best same, $10; third best same, $5.

Excursion tickets will be issued by the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., and there is no doubt that thousands of visitors will travel over the road.

THE YORKTOWN CENTENNIAL

The legislative committee appointed to arrange for the representation of Pennsylvania, at the Yorktown Centennial, next month, met at the Wyoming Valley Hotel, Wilkes-Barre, last Friday afternoon. There were present, Gov. Hoyt, Ex Gov. Hartranft, Adjutant General Latta, Senators George Handy Smith and A. Wilson Norris, and Representatives Voeghtly, Coolbaugh, Feurth and Woodruff. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the committee, the representation of Pennsylvania at Yorktown, contemplated by the resolution of the General Assembly, approved 24th of March, 1881, will include the heads of the Executive and Judicial Departments, and the Legislature of the State, and the officers of the established historical and representative societies, State and local and companies of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, including not less than 1 500 officers and men, and such invited guests as the Committee may deem it expedient to indicate.

Resolved, That a sub-committee of three, of which the chairman shall be one, be appointed to make all necessary arrangements for transportation, and that the expenses be kept within the limits of the appropriation made by act of June 29th, 1881.

The committee will hold an adjourned meeting at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, on September 15th.

Messrs. Smith, Norris and Feurth of the general committee were appointed the sub-committee mentioned.

THE THIRD BRIGADE.

The encampment of the Third Brigade at Wilkes-Barre, broke up on Monday and the soldiers returned to their homes. In a military sense, it was entirely successful The companies were nearly all full and the men well drilled and soldierly in bearing. Competent judges pronounce the brigade to be superior to the First, which is composed of city troops. It is a genuine surprise to the people, as well as to military men, that country regiments are superior to the crack city organizations in the points that constitute good soldiery. The brigade review on Saturday afternoon was witnessed by an immense crowd of spectators, many of whom were ladies. After the review the troops marched to the city and were again reviewed by the Governor and staff in front of the Wyoming Valley Hotel. The heat was almost unendurable and the roads were covered with dust to the depth of three or four inches. The soldiers looked liked veterans on a long march so covered were they with dust. The hot weather was the great drawback to the enjoyment of the encampment. Excellent discipline was preserved and nothing more serious occurred in the infraction of camp rules, than running the guard at night to secure an evening's amusement in the city. Had the heat been less intense and the roads less dusty there would have been more visitors to the camp, but the soldiers escaped the troubles and annoyances they would have had to endure if storms had visited them. There can be no doubt that such training in camp duties is of much benefit to the troops and will fit them for active service should exigencies arise.

CHARLES R. BUCKALEW.

An editorial in the Philadelphia Press of August 29th, contains the following words of praise for our townsman, Mr. Buckalew. As the Press is the leading Republican paper of the State, it is fair to assume that it reflects the opinions of the best men of its party:

Charles R. Buckalew of Columbia county, who served in the Senate from 1863 to 1869 as the successor of the famous David Wilmot, is a man of different stamp. He has in him the elements of a statesman, and is one of the few men in Pennsylvania who have taken part in public life during the last fifty years who has possessed an idea. Mr. Buckalew had one—the principle of minority representation—which he developed into the theory of cumulative voting, and so enforced it in the Constitutional Convention of 1872–73, of which he was a member, that it is now a part of the organic law of the Commonwealth. The theory was applied to the election of delegates to the Convention itself, and the Convention afterward applied it to the choice of Police Magistrates in Philadelphia and to the election of the directors of railroad corporations. When Mr. Murphy says Mr. Buckalew was an indolent Senator it is evident that with all his acuteness he does not know where to draw the line between indolency and modesty. Mr. Buckalew, since his disastrous campaign for the Governorship in 1872, when he was ostensibly the reform candidate, has been neglected by his party. Nevertheless, and despite his politics, he is a man whom the people of the State, without regard to party, honor and for whom they cherish a proud feeling as one of the few modern American politicians or statesmen, whichever they may be, who has risen above the petty contentions of party, and neglecting the battle for the spoils, has developed an idea. The high estimation of his eminent abilities is shown by his recent appointment by Governor Hoyt as a member of the Tax Commission created by the Legislature at the late session.

A TERRIBLE STORM.

A terrific tornado burst upon the city of Savannah on Saturday evening. In a few minutes the city was in darkness and the parks, streets and squares were rendered impassable by falling trees and houses. Every wire leading out of the city was prostrated, fully one hundred dwelling houses, stores and warehouses lost their roofs and many had their walls blown in. One house containing six persons was blown into the river and five people were drowned. Every person living on Shad Island is reported to be drowned and there has been great loss of life among the negroes on the rice plantations and in the neighborhood of the city. The total loss of life, so far reported, is thirty-five, and there are many more wounded. The ships in the river broke loose from their moorings. Several were sunk and a large number damaged. On Tybee Island, nearly every house was blown away. One house took fire after it fell, consuming Mrs. Georgia Wolffe, her child and her little brother. Other dreadful scenes are reported at various river resorts. In Savannah the depots, wharves, elevators and large buildings suffered great damage. The Savannah Morning News building was unroofed and the printers set up the paper in six inches of water. The beautiful trees for which the city is noted are greatly damaged. Business is paralyzed and over $1,000,000 loss has been incurred.

A large portion of the city was under water for several hours. The Central Railroad wharves were badly damaged. The Georgia Infirmary was wrecked, and the patients barely escaped, a number being bruised by falling bricks and plaster. Numerous vessels were damaged by collision and otherwise. A house was swept down the river and three of its occupants—Mrs. Stokes and her two children were drowned. Mr. Stokes barely escaped. Engineer Richard Fitzgerald, of the steamer H. B. Plant, was drowned. The family of David Bowens, colored, comprising seven persons, were drowned. At Fort Pulaski the officers' quarters were flooded.

At Port Royal S. C. a ferry house was washed away by the high tide, and a number of persons, variously estimated at from twenty to forty, were swept away and drowned. Seven bodies were subsequently recovered. The high water was caused by the hurricane, which at an earlier hour prevailed at Savannah.

The Forests of Pennsylvania.

The maple and hemlock forests of Pennsylvania have never had the benefit of the right kind of enterprise to render them as important and productive as their real value ought to produce for them. The maple wealth of Pennsylvania is as valuable as that of her black walnut, if properly handled, because the wood is hard and can be utilized to as beautiful effects in building and furniture as that of walnut or ash. This wood grows to enormous abundance in this State, and will sooner or later become one of the most profitable sources of industry by those who know how to put it on the market.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

The Cigarette Vice Needs Attention.

That something ought to be done to diminish the consumption of cigarettes seems clear. Considerations of public health are sufficient to warrant government action. It is a notorious fact, well known to all dealers in tobacco, as well as to many medical men, that, with few exceptions, the cigarettes sold are, both in the wrapper and in the filling, made of deleterious substances. It is because they are so made that they can be sold so cheap. Thus tens of thousands who would be unable to purchase cigars use cigarettes because they cost so little. If cigarettes were made of unpoisoned paper, and the filling was of tobacco, it would be impossible to make them for the price at which they are now sold. If Congress has the right to prevent the adulteration of food and drink and of drugs, it has an equal right to check the sale of these fraudulent things called cigarettes, which are not at all what they pretend to be.—New York Evening Mail.

Rev. E. Bowen, a Welsh clergyman of Gibson, Pa., fell under a moving passenger train at the Delaware and Hudson and Erie railroad depot, Carbondale, on Saturday and had one leg taken off and the other badly bruised. He is in a critical condition. He was at one time pastor of a church at Wilkes-Barre and was one of the earliest settlers of Carbondale.

The West Chester Jeffersonian contains the following item, of interest to all owners of horses. We have not heard that the disease has been observed in this vicinity, but it may make its appearance later in the season.

There is an epidemic prevalent among horses the first symptoms being a tight cough, and the seat of the disease being confined to the throat and one or both lungs. Dr. Young, of Media, says that it differs somewhat from other epidemics, and if not speedily checked runs into a malignant stage of putrid sore throat or diphtheria, and results in pyæmia or blood poison, at which stage it is contagious. The Doctor thinks it was the disease that was a few months ago prevalent in the western part of the State where the mortality was great. He has had several cases recently under treatment, one of which was fatal, and he says that to have the disease successfully treated the veterinary surgeon must be employed in its early stages, and the animal must be properly nursed. There are indications that horses during the coming autumn will be afflicted with this disease in a malignant and epidemic form.

Adolph Kester, of Danville, was arrested and locked up on Saturday night by constables Laycock and Harris, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. This is the fellow who, when last in town, successfully resisted arrest and assaulted the officers. He probably knows more than he did, and will be likely to behave himself on future visits. Kester was taken before Mr. Herring, President of the Town Council and fined $6.40. He did not have the cash to liquidate the indebtedness, and the officers were on the point of taking him back to the lock-up, when Mr. Herring agreed to accept his note for the amount. This was generous truly, and Mr. Herring will probably have the pleasure of paying the amount into the town treasury, as Kester is not considered in solvent circumstances.

The home work of woman, whether she be wife or servant, needs revision; if only genius can enable a person to be at the same time master and servant, nurse and ruler, then genius in this direction, if there is any, should make itself known for the benefit of those who are fighting magnificently against overwhelming odds. With a slighter physique than man, a physique that is occasionally subject to peculiar duties, to which that of man can offer no parallel, woman is expected to daily endure a strain that no man would tolerate for any length of time. Until what is modestly called housekeeping is recognized as the noble science that it really is and is carefully studied, the slaughter of women by overwork will continue, for at present it requires that every woman shall be a prodigy of sense, industry and endurance.

For some weeks past activity has been the order of the day at the Diocesan (Reading) School. Carpenters, masons and brick-layers have been at work. The back building has been entirely demolished and a much larger structure has arisen in its place. A new dining room having been provided, the old one will be used for a school room. There is also a new dormitory and the much needed music-room and reading-room have been provided. The library has been increased by a complete set of Sir Walter Scott and Washington Irving. The ball ground has been leveled and put in order; and, to sum it all up, things have been put in shape to make the next term both pleasant and profitable to the boys.

But what the young gentlemen will appreciate more than anything else is the gymnasium. This will be a separate building altogether. It is to be 80x35 feet and will be used both as a gymnasium and a drill room.

The military department of the school will be under the charge of Mr. G. C. Bishop, himself, formerly a cadet at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Mr. Bishop also brings with him the experience which he has acquired as commandant at De Veaux College, Suspension Bridge, N. Y.

The cadets will be required to have the full military outfit.

The best people will vote for the best man every time. And we judge by the number of the St. Jacob's Oil constituency, that it is the best remedy for the rheumatism known. Prof. Tice, of St. Louis, among others, says so.

IMPORTANT TO FIREMEN.

The law exempting firemen from taxation to the extent of $5 applies to "members of any organized volunteer fire department of any town, city, borough or township of this State under control of any town committee, common council or municipal corporation, which are now or may hereafter be established." The law provides that the certificate of the chief engineer, or of the assistant engineer, or of the mayor, or either of them, shall be a sufficient voucher and authority for the assessor or collector of taxes to deduct the sum from any tax assessed against any member of a volunteer fire department under the control of any town council or town committee.

DEAD BODY FOUND.

On Tuesday evening last, Chauncey B. Lameraux, a young man who had been an inmate of the Danville Insane Asylum, was being conveyed to his home in Jackson township in charge of his sister and another young woman, said to be his affianced, to whom he became engaged before his mental malady came on in May last. When the train arrived at West Nanticoke, Lameraux made some excuse for leaving his guardians, else evaded their care, and was not missed until the train had started. The conductor was induced to back his train to the station, but the young man could not be found, and the young women were compelled to go on without him. A reward of $75 was offered to any one giving information by which he could be traced, but without results. Nothing more was heard of him until Saturday morning, when his bloated and festering corpse was found floating in the river near the Nanticoke bridge. The presumption is, that while wandering about in his diseased condition of mind he fell in, or threw himself into the water with suicidal intent and was drowned. He was about 24 years of age, and his parents are respectable farmers of Jackson. Coroner Spayd was notified on Saturday morning, and went down and held an inquest, but the examination failed to elicit any facts other than as above stated —Scranton Republican.

A DETERMINED SUICIDE.

On Tuesday afternoon a man was found in the canal at Espy, and rescued by some young men whose attention was attracted by the splashing of the water. He was subsequently brought to Bloomsburg in a buggy driven by a son of Dr. Kase. The man arrived at the Exchange Hotel and refused to register his name. He sat moodily in a chair in the office and finally asked for supper. After eating, he gave two satchels to the clerk and walked away, saying that he would return. Nothing more was seen of him again by any one in the hotel. At half past two o'clock Wednesday morning, J. H. Maize, Esq., was awakened from sleep by a railroad employee who stated that a man had been run over and killed by the up freight train. Mr Maize hastily summoned some of the neighbors and proceeded to the place where the body lay, about half way to Rupert. The following served as jurors: C. C. Peacock, Joseph Garrison, Zachariah Thomas, William Robbins, Jacob Melick and Frank Vanderslice. John Baird, the engineer, testified that when the man was first seen he was about thirty feet from the engine and stepped from a slight embankment on to the track, looked up the road, then at the engine and then slipped down with his head across a rail. The act was done deliberately, and as if he intended to kill himself. The train was running at about twelve miles an hour. When the train went down to Danville at about eleven o'clock the man crossed the track some two hundred yards below the point where he was subsequently killed. This looks as if he had determined to commit suicide, but lacked the courage at that time. Frank Dennis, the fireman, testified that he did not see the man. The engineer told him that he had struck and killed him. He got off and walked back and found the body. It was lying with the head outside of the track and the feet under the wheels. In the pockets were found $14.14 in money, and several minor articles, none of which gave any clue to his identity. The jury examined the body, which was that of a man about 40 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches in height, light hair, blue eyes and sandy moustache. The hands were small and soft, like a woman's. On the left arm near the wrist, were the initials S. G. C. and L. E M. underneath. The skull was crushed over the right eye and also at the back; both feet were cut off and horribly mangled. It was evident that the head had been struck by a bolt on the pilot, as upon it were found portions of the scalp and hair This bolt was just above the rail, a fact that proves the engineer's statement that the man threw himself on the track. Death must have been almost instantaneous.

Mr. Clarence Fitzpatrick, clerk at the Exchange Hotel, went to the Poor House, to which place the body had been removed, and identified it as that of the man who had been at the hotel in the evening. From cards and papers found in the satchels, it was ascertained that the unfortunate was S. G. Collins, and that he was a traveling agent for Wickersham & Co., dealers in packings, oils &c., 309 Race street, Philadelphia. Nothing could be learned of his residence or family. The body was interred in such a manner that it could be readily removed if necessary, and a telegram was sent to Wickersham & Co., announcing the death of Collins and asking for instructions.

The jury adjourned after viewing the body, until eight o'clock in the evening, when they rendered a verdict of death by suicide in accordance with the evidence submitted.

There is but little doubt that Collins had determined to die, and had endeavored to drown himself in the canal at Espy. What were the causes that impelled him to such a desperate act, can only be conjectured.

A telegram was received from Wickersham & Co. on Wednesday afternoon, requesting that the body be sent to Mrs. Collins, the wife of the dead man, in Philadelphia, and promising to pay all expenses. Mr. Correll went to the Poor House, disinterred the remains and they were sent to Wilkes Barre on the evening train, whence the midnight train would take them to Philadelphia.

It has since transpired that Collins accosted a young man named Mosier, at Kramer's store, and asked him if he had a revolver. Mosier replied in the negative, whereupon Collins asked him to purchase one and offered him money for the purpose, saying that he wished to die. Subsequently Collins met J. M. Christman and grasped him by the arms. When asked what he meant by this action, Collins made no reply. Mr. Christman was convinced that the man was insane and said so at the time, but did not try to detain him as he had no assistance. It is beyond a doubt that the unfortunate man was demented.

A GRAND EXCURSION.

Our readers will not again this season have an opportunity to visit New York, Coney Island, Long Branch and Ocean Grove, with as much comfort and for so small an outlay of money, as by the grand Union Excursion which leaves Kingston at 8.45 next Tuesday morning. Tickets to Kingston can be procured at half rates and from that point to New York and return, the fare is only $3.25. For $4.35 all the points mentioned above can be visited. Hotel accommodations will be furnished at very low rates. Every arrangement has been made to secure the pleasure of excursionists, and all at low figures. It is believed that this is the cheapest excursion ever taken to the seashore, and those of our people who are yearning for a breath of salt air and a view of the tumbling sea, should not let this chance escape them.

The people of this place will either return on a morning train or a special will run down from Berwick, so that all on this line can reach home the same night. A large company are going from Bloomsburg, and as this is an opportunity of a lifetime let all be ready for September 6th. See advertisement in another column.

PHYSICIANS REGISTERED.

The following additional names of physicians have been entered upon the register in the Prothonotary's office. There are but one or two physicians in the county who have not complied with the law.

ROHRSBURG RUMORS

Some of the people here are preparing to attend the Christian Conference at Stillwater which begins on Wednesday and will be continued over Sunday.

Jas. L. Preston is lying dangerously ill on the Benton camp ground. None of the family have yet returned.

Lizzie Hartman aged about six years, daughter of Augustus Hartman, of Orange, while playing on the pump platform last Wednesday, fell in the well. The smaller child gave the alarm and the mother hastened out but found she could render no assistance. She ran to call a neighbor, when she descended and found Lizzie holding to the pump leg with both hands and feet where she had caught. She was lifted from the water, a rope was adjusted around her waist and she was raised from the well which she reported "good and cool."

Jacob Evans and Maggie Patton are very much troubled by swollen feet since having the dysentery, and both are helpless. Two of Adam Utt's and one of Wilbur Hess' children are very low with the above disease at the present time.

Nothing can be more annoying than loud laughing and hallooing on the streets on Sunday evening, and a few little boys in the lower part of town seem to try to make the evening as hideous as they can, and their parents if they have any should look into this.

The millers are having an easy time.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The amusement season in Bloomsburg will be opened on Monday evening next, by Mme. Rentz's Minstrels and Vienna Orchestra. This troupe gave an entertainment here last season, which was in all respects satisfactory, and a more enjoyable evening is promised this time. The company has been strengthened and improved and the performance now given is far better than any heretofore. It is to be hoped that there will be a large audience to inaugurate the season and to encourage the management to secure the attendance of first-class companies at later dates. The minstrels are well worth seeing and there is nothing in their programme that can offend the most fastidious.

A change is to be made in the seating arrangements of the Opera House. The chairs which have heretofore been in use in front of the auditorium will we replaced by cushioned iron seats such as are in the body of the house. This will be a decided improvement, as the chairs were exceedingly uncomfortable. Greater space will be preserved between the rows, thus affording additional comfort.

Our readers will certainly find the entertainment amusing, and will not regret their attendance. The New York Clipper of August 20th, says of a recent performance at Long Branch, N. J. "Long before eight o'clock the doors were closed, and hundreds of people turned away. At the close of the entertainment, the Young Ladies' Society, under whose auspices the company appeared, made arrangements with Manager Clarke for a return visit, when prices will be raised to one dollar to all parts of the hall. The decision was unanimous that Mme. Rentz's Minstrels gave in all respects, by far the finest entertainment ever seen at our most aristocratic summer resort."

THE DANVILLE HOSPITAL.

The Danville Intelligencer says of the progress made in rebuilding the Hospital for the Insane in that town;

Work on the two longitudinal and transverse sections of the southern wing of the hospital is progressing rapidly. Iron beams or joists have been inserted through the corridors of the lower story from which brick arches are to be sprung, which will effectually protect the various heating, ventilating, water pipes and other apparatus in the basement beneath in case of fire. The second and third stories joist are of wood, to be filled in between with mortar, and the fourth story has iron beams or joists with brick arches which will make when finished, two solid fire proof floors, the first and fourth. Partition brick walls are to be run up between the sections above the roof, which in case of fire would confine it to the single section where it originated. The door and window frames are mostly replaced in the sections named, and it will be but a week or two before the carpenters will be at work putting on the roof, which is already framed on the ground. * * * The only portions likely to be placed under roof this season are the sections already enumerated, leaving three of the longitudinal and one transverse section beside the main building to be placed under cover. A portion of the walls of these last named sections can be used, but the walls of the centre or main building will nearly all have to be torn down, as they are entirely unfit to be used again. Two-thirds have already been torn down to prevent them from falling. Workmen are busy clearing out the debris at the lateral end of the main building, and are uprooting every stone to the foundation. This was found necessary, as the main or centre building having been erected by contract under the direction of the original building commission, the contractors took advantage of it to put up a very imperfect wall, which will not be permitted under the present management.

ROUND ABOUT ROARINGCREEK.

Rev. L. R. Kramer and Rev. J. V. Bodine exchanged pulpits on Sunday.

Remember the Free Will picnic next Saturday, at the Welsh chapel, September 10th.

Rev. L. R. Kramer and family are visiting relatives in and about Schuylkill Haven.

J. W. Snyder was visiting relatives at Milton last week, and reports a pleasant trip.

Mr. William Adams' new house near the Free Will U. B. church is fast approaching completion.

The Lutheran and Reformed Sunday school picnic at this place realized $80.

A young son of Henry M. Adams had his arm broken in two places on Sunday last.

The principal crops injured by the severe dry weather are the corn, potatoes and buckwheat, the latter of which will doubtless be a total failure.

Our enterprising citizen, Mr. Montilius Yeager, has made some attractive improvements in his dwelling by way of weather-boarding, new roof and cornice.

A cat belonging to the family of Mayberry Snyder of this place, recently brought home to her two young kittens, a snake of a greenish color which measured twenty inches in length and about three-fourths of an inch in diameter.

The Kernville band picnic last Saturday was a grand success. The Mainville band discoursed some of its sweetest strains. Among its members we found Ex-representative D. S. Brown, J. D. Bodine, Esq., and Leander Yohe, the latter a former resident of this village. The gross proceeds of the affair will amount to $350.

Mr. D. W. T. W. Pursel near Buck Horn, says the "Osborne" Self binder bought last year, "fills the bill" and does all that is claimed for it.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVIL'S BLOOD and LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the best blood purifier ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic diseases, Weakness of the Kidneys, all Nervous disorders and Debility. It corrects indigestion. It makes the old feel young, and the young feel gay; and will invariably drive out of the system the many ills that human flesh is heir to. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it acts like a charm, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

There is a dangerous counterfeit in circulation, purporting to be "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer." The strongest evidence of the great value of "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer" is the fact that parties knowing its efficacy try to imitate it. Each bottle of the genuine has a "fac simile" of the signature of "D. E. Becker"—the manufacturer—blown in the glass; and the "Restorer" is as clear and harmless as water, while it possesses all the component properties necessary to restore life, vigor, growth, and color to the hair. Purchase only from responsible parties. Each bottle warranted. C. N. Crittenton, New York City, Wholesale Agent. oct. 22, 80-1t

BARBED WIRE

are undoubtedly the cheapest and most durable fence made, is not affected by fire, wind or flood, does not cause snow drifts, takes fewer posts and stock cannot push it down. Our wire is four pointed, is made of two strands of number 12 best galvanized steel wire twisted together just enough to allow for contraction and expansion in Summer and Winter, barbs are fastened every seven inches. The use of barbed wire is no longer an experiment, as last year over one hundred thousand miles were put up. We believe our wire to be the best and cheapest now manufactured because it is made of the best steel wire and runs 15 feet to the pound having the greatest strength and visibility with the least weight of any made. Put up on spools of about 100 rods weighing about 100 pounds. Price per pound 11 cents by the spool, less quantities 11½ cents per pound.

Backwheat as a Farm Crop.

E. R. Billings says in the Springfield Republican: "Backwheat is one of the most valuable of our cereals, both for table use and as food for stock. The ordinary black or gray variety has been the only sort grown until within a few years, and careful culture of the silver hull has demonstrated that it is in every way much more valuable, especially for the indispensable "griddle cakes." It is much more productive and yields under the same conditions larger crops. The husk is thinner and there is much less waste in the manufacture of flour, which is whiter and more nutritious. Backwheat, with the exception of barley, is less exhaustive to the soil than any of our small grains, although many think otherwise, but since it will grow on soils so devoid of fertility that other grains would hardly yield the seed sown seems to be sufficient proof that such is the case.

This grain does well on both light and heavy soils and may be sown from the 5th of July to the 25th in time to ripen before early frosts. From three pecks to a bushel is sown to the acre, the former quantity if the soil is in good condition. There is no crop grown on the farm that is so easily grown as this, while the yield will average from ten to twenty bushels to the acre. It is a great exterminator of all kinds of weeds and foul grass, and for this reason may be sown on land where such intruders need to be rooted out. Some farmers after mowing a crop of grass plow and sow to buckwheat and in the spring following set to tobacco, a very good way, since the land will be free from weeds during the culture of the "weed" with the exception of the springing up here and there of the seeds of the wheat left at harvesting.

To the farmer who fattens many hogs this grain will be found very valuable. It is heating, and therefore very valuable for winter food. It should be mixed with corn, or with corn, rye and oats, and at least two-thirds of any grist should be other grains. To the poultry breeder it is indispensable, and it is not exceeded in value as a valuable food for fowls unless it be refuse wheat, while many think it equally good. It will stimulate the production of eggs, while its warming and heating qualities render it valuable during the cold winter months. The straw by many is burned on the field, but stock will eat it in the yard if fed occasionally a small quantity, while if cut fine and sprinkled with a little meal it may be fed at least three or four times a week, thereby saving a large amount of more valuable fodder.

This grain is raised in all parts of New England, and in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio is a staple crop. New York and Pennsylvania produce two-thirds of the crop grown in the country, while some of the Western States produce a small quantity. Large quantities of the grain is floured, and our large cities and towns, more especially, use it largely during the winter, and it is to the families of New England and the Middle States at the breakfast table what hoe cake is to the Southerner. Almost every farmer has some ground adapted for its culture, and it will be found a profitable crop to grow. We know of an old farmer who stacks buckwheat straw after it is threshed, in one corner of his barnyard for his stock to feed on when turned into the yard during the winter. We asked him if his cattle would eat it. "Oh, yes," was the reply. "When I turn them out for the first time and they go to the stack, I get a whip and drive them away and holler at them whenever I see them around it, and in this way they eat it all up."

Weeds.

In an article upon the extermination of weeds, the Massachusetts Plowman urges keeping up the warfare till the end of the season, and as an illustration of the importance of this persistence cites a curious fact which most practical gardeners must have observed:

"Time spent in destroying weeds in autumn is well spent. The moment cultivation ceases a fresh crop of nearly all kinds of weeds will appear, and, with seeming intelligence, they do not stop to grow large before blossoming, as they do if they come up early in spring and grow unmolested, but they begin to blossom when very small, and in an incredibly short time mature their seeds, and thus prepare the germs for a numerous crop another year. While these small weeds may not materially injure the crop of the present year, they propogate their race and cause the farmer a great amount of labor next year; far more than would be the labor to continue the fight until fall, and thus prevent any seeds ripening for any future crop."

Use and Benefit of Plaster.

It appears from a statement made by the State Agricultural College, of Michigan, on their farm with sowing land plaster on grass, that two bushels of plaster produced over two thirds as much increase as twenty loads of horse manure, worth ten times as much as the plaster cost. From this experiment, it must not be inferred that the same results would be forthcoming on all soils from similar application, for all lands are not equally benefited by the application of plaster, though, as a rule, pasture fields can be made to produce luxuriant grass by its use. So far as we know, where plaster has been tried in Minnesota on grass lands and meadows, its effect was surprising. The only instance brought to our attention, however, was the application on sandy land. So says the Farmers' Union.

Cow manure contains 10 per cent more water than horse manure. Horse manure contains about 3 per cent of nitrogen, while cow manure contains about 2½. Horse manure contains ½ per cent of phosphoric acid, while about one-half of 1 per cent is contained in cow manure.

Dan Halleck, a veteran hunter, who was with a party camping out at Highland Lake, Sullivan county, N. Y., last week, is the hero of an exciting chase, fight and capture of a deer at that place. The party was warned of the presence of deer by the baying of the hounds, and Halleck said, "If that deer crosses the river here I'll capture him." None of the party imagined for a moment that he could do so, as they were on a fishing excursion, and were without firearms. Presently, however, the deer made his appearance and rushed into the water to swim across. Immediately Halleck jumped into a rowboat, and then began an exciting chase after the deer. Halleck at last reached it, and rowing the boat close upon the deer, grabbed him by the tail and held on. The deer continued to swim despite his heavy load, but his tail began to slip away, and Halleck found it necessary to grab him by the leg. This the deer objected to, and, letting fly his heels, kicked Halleck and the boat out of the water. The hunter was not thus to be frustrated, however, and, hastily swimming after the weary stag he dealt him a heavy blow with a knife which ended his life. When dressed the venison amounted to 150 pounds.

The Bohemian Girl at Home.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin writing from Carlsbad says: The Bohemian girl as she appears on her native soil does not look as it she ever dreamt of marble halls, as did the girl of the late Mr. Balfe's opera. She begins life swathed in a stiff pillow to straighten and strengthen her back. Soon after she begins to walk she takes lessons in bearing burdens on this back, and by the time she reaches womanhood can carry a ten-gallon cask of water, or a huge basket filled with firewood or soiled clothes, up a steep hill twenty or thirty times, without stopping to rest. Advancing in years, she may be hitched with a cow or a big dog to pull a market wagon, driven by her beloved and loving husband. If she is a very good wife she may be advanced to the dignity of being the off horse, with a dog for the near one, to haul a coal cart to a customer's door, and when she unhitches herself she carries in a pannier the rusty-looking coal of the country up one, two or three pairs of stairs, while the man and dog repose in the street. It is thus that the native Bohemian girl often fulfills her destiny in this historic and chivalric land. Woman is the drudge and the beast of burden here, as in many other parts of this continent. There are fine horses for driving heavy vehicles, and there are donkeys that pull fat dowagers or lazy little boys up the hills. But there are no equestrian displays. A riding horse is more rarely seen in Carlsbad than a pretty German woman, and yet there are scores of cavaliers in cavalry uniforms that ought to be pricking the sides of the best blooded steeds of the orient. But there is not much need of horses in a country where women are laborers, and the pleasure horse is an expensive luxury.

A writer in the San Francisco Call says: "Rattlesnakes differ from the others in their method of killing their prey. I have watched one of them killing a rat. He struck him two or three times with his fangs and the rat died in a few minutes, after kicking convulsively for an instant or so. After he had struck the rat the snake drew back and waited still and motionless as a stone, until the rat was dead, or until he thought he was dead. He then came forward and felt him from head to tail with his nose, and then the rat gave another kick while he was doing so and he drew quickly back again and waited in the same motionless manner until he thought the rat was dead. Then he felt him again, and assured himself this time that the rat was really dead. A snake won't eat anything alive—in fact, a live rat might be a disagreeable inmate. Whether he knew that the rat was dead by the stop page of his heart beats, or in some other manner, I do not know; but I am convinced that he assured himself of the fact in some way before he commenced to assimilate the rat."

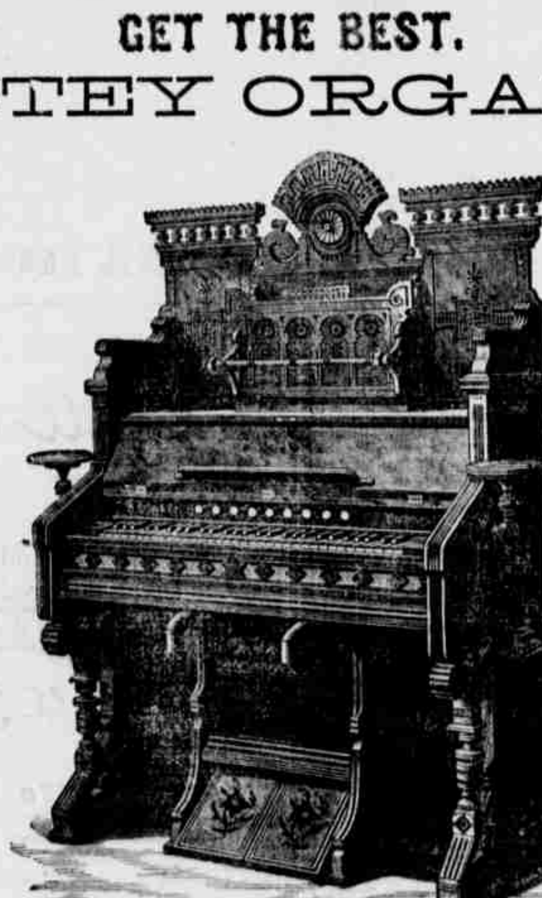

A BENEFICENT ACTION.

The worn look and miserable feelings of those closely confined in mills, or at desks or work tables, are caused by weak stomach, kidneys or bowels, and show the necessity for some mild tonic to build them up. No one need suffer thus who will use Parker's Ginger Tonic; for without intoxicating it has such a beneficent action on these sluggish organs as to cleanse the poisonous matters from the system, that rosy cheeks and good health and spirits are soon brought back again.—Express. See advertisement.

Catharic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.
